JURY FINDS MAN GUILTY OF ATTACKS

A Denver jury convicted a man today of assaulting two women near the University of Denver campus back in March 2004.

Andrew Plancarte (dob: 02-04-64) was found guilty of burglary, kidnapping and two counts of third-degree assault. He will be sentenced on October 23, 2006 at 8:30 a.m. in Denver District Courtroom 16.

Plancarte was arrested nearly two months after the attacks. In the first attack, a then-31 year old woman had just walked home to the 1900 block of South Williams Street when a man identified as Plancarte followed her inside and assaulted her. The second attack occurred a short time later in the 2300 block of South High Street to a then-20 year old woman who was walking home.
