MURDERER GIVEN TWO LIFE SENTENCES

A man convicted of killing two men in separate attacks, one in 2000 and another in 2002, was sentenced today to two terms of life in prison without the possibility of parole. He also was sentenced to an additional 12 years in prison for aggravated motor vehicle theft and 12 years for first-degree arson, with those sentences to run concurrently with the life terms.

Sean Hanify (dob: 01-20-71) was convicted earlier of killing 46-year-old Mark Davis and the murder of 59-year-old Edward Brown in which he set fire to Brown's home and stole his car.
