WORKER SENTENCED IN IDENTITY THEFT CASE

A former Denver city worker charged with identity theft has been sentenced in connection with the case today.

Ray Taylor (dob: 08-25-72) pleaded guilty earlier this year to identity theft (F4) and theft (F4). Taylor was sentenced today to a total of 4 years in prison, and was ordered to pay $10,968.28 in restitution.

The charges alleged that Taylor possessed and used the names, dates of birth and other personal information of other people, including current and former Denver city employees, to open credit card and bank accounts without their permission. Taylor had worked as a payroll clerk for Denver's Career Service Authority.
