MAN SENTENCED IN COLD CASE SEX ASSAULT CASE

A man who was found guilty earlier this year of two counts of sexual assault on a woman in a cold case from more than 10 years ago has been sentenced today.

Eddie Simon (dob: 01-27-68) was found guilty at trial of two counts of sexual assault (F2, F3) and was sentenced today to an indeterminate sentence of 16 years to life in prison.

When Simon was arrested in 2013 on felony drug charges, his DNA was taken at the time, pursuant to Katie's Law. His DNA was then connected to the 2001 sex assault case in which Simon had given the victim a ride and then raped her at knifepoint.
