MAN SENTENCED IN TEEN'S MURDER

A young man who pleaded guilty in connection with the gang-related shooting of a 13-year-old last September has been sentenced today.

Lonnie White (dob: 01-02-1996) pleaded guilty earlier to second-degree murder (F2) and was sentenced today to 40 years in prison, the maximum possible under the plea agreement.

After emotional statements from the victim's family, Denver Deputy District Attorney Steve Abraham argued for the maximum sentence; the judge agreed.

A co-defendant, Marquise Lewis (dob: 07-16-1993), still faces a first-degree murder charge. A motions hearing is set for late August in his case.
