MAN CHARGED IN NORTHWEST DENVER STABBING

Denver District Attorney Mitch Morrissey has formally charged a man accused of attacking a patron at a northwest Denver restaurant last week.

Anthony Ealy (dob: 10-16-69) is charged with attempted first-degree murder (F2), first-degree assault (F3) and crime of violence (SE).

The charges allege that on Tuesday, September 6, 2016, Ealy attacked a man who was sitting at a northwest Denver restaurant in the 3600 block of West 32nd Avenue, coming up from behind him and cutting his throat with a knife. Ealy was identified as a suspect and was arrested the next day without incident.

Ealy remains in custody; his bond is set at $150,000. He is scheduled to appear in Denver County Courtroom 2100 on Wednesday, September 14, 2016, for his second advisement.
